Mr. A. E. Cox joined his wife and family at the Leigh Currie home, last Tuesday. We understand that "Nip" has his discharge from the Navy, now.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hardy, of Minburn, were Sunday visitors in the Albert district.

BIG POTATOES

It all began last week when Mrs. J. Rome came upon a large potato weighing 2 lb. 3 oz. She wrapped it up and sent it into town where it was put on display in the window of Steve's Shoe Shop.

For a time it looked as though that tuber would be unbeaten but the Mr. I. S. Reeds began to dig and disintered a monster weighing 2 lbs. 12 oz. Mr. Pryce Jones then sallied forth armed with pick and shovel and possibly a derelict and brought in one weighing 2 lbs. 13 oz. The matter is not settled yet for we heard Mr. Hutchinson muttering about "wait till I get mine dug." Then Mr. McFarland has yet to unearth his famous netted gems. We also have a feeling that the Rev. H. W. Inglis has something up his sleeve. But until all the various gardens are dug we will have to wait before awarding the potato crown to Mr. Pryce Jones. In the meantime it is worth anyone's while to see the display in Steve's window.

THE SCHOOL LUNCH

Growing boys and girls need both milk (or a food with milk or cheese in it) and other protein foods in their school lunch.

The word protein comes from a Greek word meaning "to come first" and protein foods come first in that they are essential for the building and upkeep of everybody's tissue.

Miss Joyce Lewis, nutritionist for the Home Economics Service of the Alberta Department of Agriculture, says that milk, essential in the school lunch for its supply of calcium needed for strong bones and healthy teeth, also provides good quality proteins, or building foods—but not enough of them to take care of those growing bodies. In addition to milk, the school lunch should contain another protein food such as meat, fish eggs, peanut butter, cheese, or baked beans to provide an adequate supply of these building foods. These may be in the sandwich filling, or they may be "finger foods" such as a hard cooked egg, a cooked pork chop, the leg of a chicken, or a mock chicken leg (a piece of meat cooked on a little wooden skewer).

A hot lunch program in the school may help to provide a plentiful supply of these growth promoting foods. For information and assistance in planning a hot school lunch program contact your district home economist, or write to the home economics service, Alberta department of agriculture, Edmonton.

VARSITY HOMECOMING TO BE GALA AFFAIR

With the Students' Union of the university of Alberta acting as hosts on October 10 and 11, alumni, young and not so young, are assured of a rare good time. Committees under the direction of Miss Vivian Suey are working overtime to complete all necessary arrangements. One of the extra special features will be the reunion of the Class of '22 which will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary. Every effort is being made to contact all graduates of the university and a record attendance is expected.

The program will include such interesting features as a monster parade; a football game when the Golden Bears will take on the Montana School of Mines at Clarke stadium; a dinner and dance when there will be opportunity to swap yarns with old pals; a debate in which Calgary will argue it out with Edmonton; and golf and tennis tournaments if the weather man will condescend to take an interest in the festivities.

As accommodation at the dinner will probably have to be restricted, everyone is advised to get in his reservation early. The Students' Union office will be glad to make all arrangements. The main thing is to mark the calendar right now for the Homecoming at Varsity, October 10 and 11, and get on the mailing list by phoning or writing for further particulars.

World of Wheat

by H. G. L. Strange

MORE FOOD NEEDED

The F.A.O. (Food and Agriculture Organization) has just met at Geneva to discuss the food needs and supplies for the world. A special food council has been set up. Opinions were expressed that in order to meet the existing world food crisis the following steps would have to be taken:

1. To make the best use of existing stocks.
2. To bring about an increase in the 1948 world harvests.
3. To remove handicaps to future production.

All this contains the important lessons for Canada that she should try to produce those foods for export that the hungry populations of the world mostly require. The most important of these foods is, of course, wheat, for one acre of wheat will feed five times as many people as a similar acre used for the raising of grains or grasses to produce livestock products.

In view of the situation set out by the Food Council, which situation was of course well known last year, it seems that those who advised Canadian farmers to decrease their wheat acreage last year were wrong. Surely an effort should be made to put into crop every acre we possibly can this next spring, and of grains which will feed the most human beings. Higher wheat prices to farmers would naturally ensure greater production.

A Rural Housing Project

THE NEED FOR IMPROVING HOUSING, educational and recreational facilities in rural communities in Western Canada has long been recognized, since in none of these respects does the average farmer enjoy the advantages offered to those who live in towns and cities. The fact that living conditions in urban communities are more attractive has rightly been assumed to be the cause of many enterprising young people leaving the farms and seeking work in urban centres where they can have more modern homes, send their children to larger schools, and enjoy wider cultural and recreational advantages. It is generally agreed that it is most unjust that farmers, who contribute so much to the well being of the entire country, should not live and work in surroundings as attractive as those in the larger towns and cities. This matter has received the attention of governments, agricultural organizations and other interested bodies for many years, and in numerous farm communities great improvements have been made in educational facilities and in providing recreational and cultural opportunities for residents of all age groups.

Standards To Be Improved

It appears now that constructive action is being taken to raise the standards for farm homes in Western Canada. In this connection it has recently been announced that under the Prairie Rural Housing Committee, which includes representatives of the Federal Department of Agriculture and the Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation, research will be done on improving housing conditions for Western Canadian farm families. Research teams from the Universities of Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba are now studying such problems as water and heating systems, methods of sewage disposal, and construction materials and costs. At the University of Manitoba work is being carried on in connection with the planning and design of farm homes, farm kitchens, and community centres to meet the needs of rural districts. Farm men and women are being consulted for suggestions and ideas in connection with these studies and it is reported that keen interest is being shown in the planning of homes provided with equipment, storage space and other facilities which will lighten the work of the farm family and give more pleasant surroundings in which to live.

Study Needs Of Western Farms

Professor J. A. Russell, director of the School of Architecture and Fine Arts at the University of Manitoba, announced recently that the budget allocated for the entire project in the year ending March 31st, 1948, is $33,825. It has been arranged that each Western province will bear about 15 per cent. of this expenditure, while the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation will pay the remaining 55 per cent. It is expected that the project will not be completed for two years, but interim plans will be made available to farmers to meet what is termed a "tremendous need". As is the case with all types of housing in Canada at the present time, there has been a minimum of construction of farm homes during the past few years due to the critical shortage of labor and materials. By the time it is possible for any extensive building program to be undertaken in rural districts it appears that plans will be available for homes suitable to the needs of the Western farmer, and that no longer will prairie farm homes be built from plans more suited to city houses or to eastern Canadian farms.

WHIRLWIND WOO.—Georgeette Whirlwind is shown with Harry Cushing III, of the Vanderbilt clan, following their marriage in Las Vegas, Neb. He is the son of the former Mrs. Kathleen Vanderbilt and the wedding climaxed one of the most whirlwind courtships that Hollywood has ever seen. Georgeette, a movie actress, was introduced to Cushing by Johnny Meyer, party-giving press agent of Howard Hughes.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

"I once loved a girl who made a complete fool of me."
"What a lasting impression some girls make."

A commercial traveller, held up in the Orkneys by a storm, wired to his firm in Aberdeen: "Marooned by storm—wire instructions."
They replied: "Start summer holidays as from yesterday."

The leader of the party visiting a mental institution went up to a group of inmates standing near the gate. Quietly he addressed one of them.
"Why are you all here, my good man?"
The other grinned, pointed to the party, and gave the simple reply: "Because we're not all there."

Poetic Rover (to farmer): "And does this glorious setting sun mean nothing to you?"
Farmer (mopping his brow): "I'll say it does. It means I can eventually unhitch the horses and go home."

After going about three miles the motorist who had given an old lady a lift on the country road asked: "And where did you say you were going?"
"Well," she said, "to tell you the truth, I was going in the opposite direction, only I didn't like to hurt your feelings when you were so kind as to offer me a ride."

The five-year-old evacuee was given an egg for breakfast on his first morning on the farm. He took some in his spoon, sniffed at it several times, looked up in surprise, and exclaimed: "Coo, what a funny egg; it don't smell."

Murphy: "Have ye seen Pat lately?"
"Faith, yes, I thought I saw him on the other side of the road yesterday, and he thought he saw me, but, begorra, when we got up to one another it was neither of us."

A sailor called unexpectedly on his fiancée. He found her all dressed up and ready to go to a dance.
"That's the spirit," he told her. "No need to be gloomy."

Just then the telephone bell rang, and the sailor answered it. "What?" he said. "Oh yes—judging from the number of U-boats we've sunk, I should certainly think so." And he hung up the receiver.
"Who was that," asked the girl.
"Oh," said the sailor, "just a fellow who wanted to know if the coast is clear."

Young man: "I want to buy a diamond ring."
Salesman: "Yes, sir. How about one of our engagement sets? Three pieces. Engagement, wedding and teething."

A special constable had been told to stop a car which was travelling fast in his direction. Ten minutes later he rang up to report, "The car was being driven by an actress," he said. "I stops her, pulls out my notebook, she snatches it, writes her autograph in it, and then away she goes!"

A woman returned a smart pair of shoes to the exclusive shop where she had purchased them. "They won't do," she announced. "I simply can't walk in them."
"Madam," the clerk replied, looking down his nose, "people who have to walk don't shop here."

A Chinese cook was taking a walk through the woods when he noticed a grizzly bear following, sniffing his tracks.
"So," he said, "you like my tracks? Well, good, me make some more."

Chili Restricts Luxury Exports From Canada

MONTREAL.—Mariano Busto, Chilean consul-general here, announced that because of shrinking dollar reserves his country is imposing temporary prohibition on a wide range of "luxury" imports from Canada. The restrictive decree will expire Dec. 31.

Among products and manufactures affected by the decree are industrial, commercial and domestic refrigerators, gas and electric heaters, pottery, glassware, lumber, hunting and fishing equipment, some textiles, domestic radios, building hardware, plumbing supplies, cutlery, flour-milling machinery, footwear, dyes, perfumes and toothpaste.

Heavy machinery, agricultural implements, newspaper, rubber and chemical products are not affected by the decree, Mr. Busto said.

Memorial Edition Of Jack Miner's Book

All followers of the life of the late Jack Miner and his career as a bird lover, naturalist, conservationist and humanitarian will be interested to learn that the Jack Miner Foundation have recently persuaded the Little-Lee Pub. Co. of Chicago, and the Copp Clark Co. of Toronto, to bring out for the public's interest a new enlarged Memorial Edition of the book entitled Jack Miner And The Birds. They have combined his two books entitled Jack Miner And The Birds and Jack Miner On Current Topics with 20 of Jack Miner's most famous magazine and newspaper articles sandwiched in between, making it a very large edition of several hundred pages. It is quite appropriate that it be called the memorial edition.

Orders have flooded the publishers' offices before the book was actually off the press, which is only evidence of how popular Jack Miner's writings have been among his fellowmen of his generation. The late Jack Miner was not considered a naturalist from a scientific standpoint. Jack Miner said himself "he was interested so much in the number of spots on a woodpecker's tail as he was in saving that and other species from extermination."

The late Governor Alfred Smith of the State of New York always introduced Jack Miner as "the Billy Sunday for the bird family." The late Irvin S. Cobb always referred to Jack Miner as "the greatest practical naturalist on the planet," while Edgar A. Guest, the Detroit poet, always spoke of him as the best loved Christian in America. Thousands of such tributes have been made about the world famous naturalist both while he was living and since he passed on. His own personal writings now contained in the new enlarged memorial edition of Jack Miner and The Birds tells why he gained the respect and honor of the men and women of not only this continent but the entire world.

Some Strange Laws In United States

The Brandon Sun says: Every dog may have his day, but the legal rights of a dog seem to depend on whether the laws were made by friends or foes of the canines. In Colorado Springs, Colo., a court ruled that a dog is entitled to one bite. But out in Pasadena, Calif., you cannot keep a dog that barks, the law says. These are two of the unusual animal laws discovered by Fred Meyer, "answer man" at the Lincoln park zoo, Chicago. Here are some other animal laws reported by Mr. Meyer. Bullfrogs and cotton-tail rabbits are protected in Hayden, Ariz. It is against the law to disturb them. California law requires a hunting license to set a trap for a mouse. A Colorado law forbids angling for trout while on horseback.

Paints Portraits Of V.C. Winners

Alberta Highway Work Well Ahead

An ambitious program of $13,000,000 worth of road construction in 88 separate projects is one-third completed in Alberta, according to a statement by Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works for the province. Far ahead of the budgets allocated by either Manitoba or Saskatchewan, the Alberta spending program was designed to restore the transcontinental highways and rebuild the main networks of subsidiary roads.

Included in the work now near completion is the paving of a long section of the Lethbridge-Medicine Hat highway. Other incomplete projects are all advanced to the 50 per cent. stage or better, and the minister stated that the whole program was expected to be completed on schedule this year "if we have an average run in the weather."—Canadian Finance.

FIRST CANADIAN MOTHER VISITS DUTCH CEMETERY

WINNIPEG.—Believed to be the first Canadian mother to visit cemeteries at Nijmegen, Holland, and Adegmen, Belgium, Mrs. W. R. Dilworth of Pincher Creek, Alta., is visiting relatives here en route back to her home.

She found the pilgrimage far from lonely and she said that people she had met on the trip had been unable to do enough for her.

Added Mrs. Dilworth: "I can tell every Canadian mother who lost a son how pleasant the stretches of green grass are, with flowers and bushes between the graves. Each metal cross is painted white, and bears the boy's name and identification number."

First bereavement came for Mrs. Dilworth, September 13, 1944, when her son, James Robert, 27, was killed, Herman Clifton, 25, another son, was killed the following December 12.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

THE LILAC TREE

By RUTH THOMPSON

VIC strode ahead into the depot with his suitcase and Mary's grey tweed bag. Last night this had seemed such a perfect idea. Vic and she were dancing when he suggested it.

"We can be married right away over the line—no waiting around. Don't fuss about a lot of clothes," he had said. "Just wait. I'll dress you like a doll."

The first time he said that, Mary felt tingly from head to toe. She hated her job in the noisy restaurant. Every day the trays seemed heavier and clumsier to manage. Vic's cheery flirting at the counter had been a welcome diversion.

Vic sat the bags down beside a long empty bench and she watched him hurry to the ticket-window. How queer, she thought, just two years ago, when she left Pine Creek—it was April then, too—she had entered the city through this same station. Two years of disillusionment! Although it now seemed like an eternity ago, she could still see Mom's tear-filled eyes.

"Aw, mom, you know I love you," Mary had said then. "Gee, Mom, you're swell. Roger, too. But, after all, I don't want to settle down and be a farmer's wife. I want to go dancing and see good shows and have fun."

Then the local train puffed in. As Mary reached for her luggage Mom grabbed her and held her tight in her arms.

"Don't you worry about me now, Mom. I'll write." Then Mom had tucked a spray of purple lilac in the strap of the suitcase—"So you'll not be forgetting the lilac tree."

Mary smiled. She was remembering how she had called even the tinest shrub a lilac-tree. Someone came and sat close to her. Vic, it was, with the tickets in his hand. "What are you grinning about?" he asked. "Oh, nothing," she answered. "I was just remembering." She wouldn't try to explain. He would never understand.

He let it go at that. He laid his arm across her shoulders, drew her close, while his pudgy fingers kept squeezing her arm. His lips almost touched hers.

"Kiss me, Baby," he urged, with a pensive gleam in his steady blue eyes. Mary shrank back. How bloated his face looked in daylight. Strange that never before had she realized the fullness of his lips. She pushed him back with a quiver of uneasiness—why, this was the man she had promised to marry.

Oh, not here, Vic," she pleaded. "Not afraid of me, are you? Better not be!" His voice sounded sarcastic—or was that a threat?

Mary turned her face away, trying to ignore him. She noticed a woman who had entered the depot. The woman carried an armful of hauntingly sweet lilacs. She brushed past Mary. One spray fell near her.

"Vic," she said, touching his coat sleeve. "Pick up that lilac for me, won't you?"

He looked at her in amazement, then kicked it away contemptuously. "You're crazy. That weed! Why would you want that?" he asked.

"Just you wait. I'll get you roses, a bouquet of red roses," she said. "What's wrong? You're not like my girl at all this morning. That silly old flower—not so about it, are you?"

Mary did not answer. She was seeing lilac-trees, purple and white, all in bloom back home. She could almost smell their sweetness. Vic swore under his breath. Startled, Mary turned to him. A swarthy man, with hat pulled low, was approaching them. His face was vaguely familiar.

"Who is he, Vic?" Mary whispered as she tried to recollect where or if she had met him. Vic paid no attention to her. Instead he spoke sharply to the man.

"What's the big idea, following me here? Didn't I tell everyone to lay low? I mean it. Mary and me are going away to—going away to be hitched."

Mary noticed uneasily how he hesitated as he spoke. The stranger's eyes shifted to Mary. She caught a glimpse of a scar high on one cheek, of shifty, dark eyes.

Something clicked. That picture in last night's paper. The column about another hold-up. Mary shivered—like when someone dropped a lump of snow down her back when she was a kid.

Then—"It's like this, boss—" He was whispering something in Vic's ear. "Boss," started, Mary tried to listen closer.

Vic swore again. His voice was harsh. "No!" he shouted.

Mary shivered. She looked around, hoping no one heard him. "Listen, Baby," he said, turning to her. "I've got some business, some mighty important business to tend to. You wait here. I'll be back, pronto."

Mary watched them step into a large flashy car. At first she was frightened. Then there was no feeling in her body but a queer numbness. Only her brain stirred. It was clearing, like a mist rising after sunrise.

As if looking into a kaleidoscope, all the separate pieces slipped into a pattern, no longer rose-colored—now something brown and drab and ugly.

She thought of Vic's promises. Beautiful clothes, night clubs, a gay party somewhere every night. She thought of Mom, darling Mom, and of quiet, trustworthy Roger still waiting for her to change her mind and come back to him. She hesitated.

People hurried in and out of the station. Mary looked at her wrist-watch and wondered if the morning milk-train still ran to Pine Creek. She went to the station door and looked down the street. Vic would be back any minute now.

Suddenly she grabbed up her grey tweed bag and almost ran to the ticket window. There were only two ahead of her. Breathlessly she asked the agent about the train to Pine Creek.

"Yes, Ma'am! In three minutes, better hurry," he said as he stamped her ticket.

Clutching the bit of paper in her fingers when he handed it to her, all of a sudden she felt as if she had been running through a dark, dense forest and had that minute stepped out into the warm clean sunlight.

RECIPES

HAM AND NOODLE CASSEROLE

2 cups medium noodles
2 tablespoons fat
1/2 pound diced cooked ham or canned luncheon meat
4 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
3 cups milk
1 cup drained whole kernel corn
2 cups corn flakes
1 tablespoon melted butter

Cook noodles in boiling salted water 8-10 minutes; drain and rinse with cold water. Heat fat in frying pan, add meat and cook until lightly browned. Sprinkle flour and seasonings over meat and stir until each piece is coated. Add milk slowly and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Combine noodles and corn with meat mixture. Pour into greased casserole. Crush corn flakes into fine crumbs and mix with melted butter. Sprinkle crumbs over top of casserole. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 deg. F.) about 20 minutes. Yield: 8 servings (1 1/2 quart casserole).

Note: Any leftover vegetable may be used in place of the corn. For an unusual flavour add 1/2 cup sliced stuffed olives with vegetables to casserole dish.

Railroad Man Was Repaid For Kindness

Wheat Crop Shows High Protein Content

Grain Commissioners Report Early Samples Of 1947 Higher Than Last Year

WINNIPEG.—The protein content of early run samples of this year's wheat is 15.1 per cent, according to a report issued by the Board of Grain Commissioners Laboratory. This figure is 1.3 per cent. points higher than the mean for last year, and almost reaches the record high of 15.2 per cent. obtained at about the same time in 1941. The mean protein content for Canadian hard red spring wheat over the last 20 years is 13.6 per cent.

The results are based on analyses of 1,395 samples grading No. 1 Northern to No. 4 Special, drawn from almost every section of Manitoba, most of Saskatchewan excepting the north-eastern districts, and the southern part of Alberta.

To date, over half of the samples tested are over 15 per cent. protein and about a fifth of them are over 17 per cent. It is likely, however, that the average value will be reduced by at least 0.5 per cent. as more samples are received from low protein areas. The number of samples tested and the mean protein values for each province are:

Province	No. of Samples	Protein Content 1947	Protein Content 1946
Manitoba	275	15.1	14.2
Saskatchewan	229	15.6	14.4
Alberta	121	14.4	13.5
Western Canada	1299	15.1	13.9

Areas of high protein (over 15 per cent.) are in western and north-western Saskatchewan. The remaining area are mostly medium protein with a few low protein patches in Manitoba.

National Immunization Week To Be Observed

TORONTO.—Dr. Nellie Silverthorne, chairman of the Health League of Canada's National Immunization Committee, has announced that the Dominion's fifth annual National Immunization Week will be observed during the week of October 5, next.

This annual national observance is designed to draw attention to the fact that certain communicable diseases, which are still taking toll among the nation's children, are largely preventable. National Immunization Week is just another means of emphasizing to the general public something they should know already—that toxoid prevents diphtheria; that whooping cough vaccine prevents whooping cough; and that vaccination prevents smallpox.

The "Week" is sponsored by the Health League in co-operation with departments of health throughout the nation.

LOCALS

Mr. J. N. Carrington has returned to his home in Vancouver after spending about 3 weeks at Irma and district.

Ralph Congdon purchased the home formerly owned by E. W. Peterson and has moved it onto his farm northwest of town.

Mr. E. W. Carter was quite ill in Wainwright hospital this past week. We are glad to report that he is much improved and expects to be home this week.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Wiesser and family left Irma on Wednesday for New Westminster where they will make their new home.

Mr. E. R. Erickson of Mt. Vernon, Wash., visited with his old friend, Mr. L. A. Johnson on Monday last.

We are glad to report that Mrs. A. L. Johnson is recovering as well as can be expected from her illness of last week.

Mrs. John Marshall of Wainwright is now residing in Irma at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Askin.

Visitors at the L. A. Johnson home last Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Taylor of Seattle, Wash. Mrs. P. M. Spring and Mrs. Jennie Larson.

Keep in mind the 16th and 17th of November, when the United Church will hold its usual anniversary services and anniversary supper.

Mr. Lorn Lennon has decided to return to Irma to live and will go into the auctioneering business here.

Mr. M. D. Askin showed us a letter he received from his daughter, Mrs. Bland of Oakland, Calif. telling of the return trip by car to Oakland of Mr. Askin's grandsons Gary and Dick. It seems the boys had rather a rough journey home what with wet roads and car trouble. Perhaps the worst mishap was Dick's misfortune in having his glasses smashed when the car went into the ditch.

Keep in mind the change of time for the United Church Service.

An Eastern go-getter in the West spied a lazy Indian chief lolling idly at the door of his teepee.

"Chief," remonstrated the go-getter, "why don't you get yourself a job?"

"Why?" grunted the chief.

"Well you could earn money."

"Why?" insisted the chief.

"Oh, if you worked hard and saved your money, you'd soon have a savings account. Wouldn't you like that?"

"Why?" again asked the chief.

"For gosh sakes!" shouted the exasperated go-getter. "With a big savings account you could retire, and then you wouldn't have to work any more."

"Not working now," pointed out the Indian. —Gluey Gleanings.
